

Occupational health and safety and environmental compliance in industrial facilities is of fundamental concern to firms with a multi-national character, with international brand-name recognition and reputations at stake. GEO help develop, update or use an existing corporate EMS to identify whether the established standards are met. Based on the findings, we can offer recommendations for further action and improvement.